

PRIVATE EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATION COACHING

Executive Presence Under Pressure

Your expertise has to remain clear when the pressure rises.

Senior professionals are rarely held back by a lack of knowledge.

The greater challenge is maintaining access to that knowledge when the stakes are high, the room becomes less predictable, and the conversation no longer follows the prepared sequence.

A difficult question can pull an answer into unnecessary detail. An interruption can disrupt the structure of a recommendation. A skeptical reaction can create pressure to explain more rather than lead more clearly.

THE THREE MOMENTS THAT MATTER

Executive presence is revealed when the conversation stops following the plan.

THE OPENING

Can the speaker establish direction before moving into supporting detail?

THE INTERRUPTION

Can the speaker remain organized when someone else changes the conversation?

THE RECOVERY

Can the speaker regain control after pressure or an answer moves off track?

Executive Presence Under Pressure develops the structure, control, and consistency required to remain credible in all three moments.

THE RECOMMENDED ENGAGEMENT

12 WEEKS TO CREATE LASTING CHANGE

Grasping a stronger communication technique can happen quickly. But making that technique reliable under pressure requires time to apply it, evaluate what happened, adjust the approach, and reuse it consistently.

THE DEVELOPMENT PROCESS

THE WORK: A private coaching engagement built around the participant's real communication responsibilities, with application, feedback, and reinforcement across the full 12-week period.

ACCELERATED OPTION A six-week version is available when timing requires a more concentrated engagement.
